TERNISSA.

[Walter Savage Landor.] Ternissa, you are fled! I say not to the dead, But to the happy ones who rest below; For, surely, surely, where Your voice and graces are,

Nothing of death can any feel or know. Girls who delight to dwell Where grows most asphodel Gather to their calm breasts each word you speak; The mild Persephone Places you on her kace, And your cool palm smoothes down stern Pluto's cheek.

Oaths of All Nations.

[Tids Bits.] The following summary of the forms of oath in use in foreign legislative assemblies is extracted from the reports received at the British foreign office in New York:

Bavaria I swear * * * So help me God and His holy gospel. Denmark-I promise and swear * * So help me "od and His holy word. Greece-I swear in the name of the holy and consubstantial and indivisible trinity. Hesse Darmstadt-I swear * * So help me God. Saxe-Coburg and Baden-I swear. So help me God. Holland-I swear. So help me God.

Portugal—I swear on the holy gospels.
Prussia—I swear by God, the Almighty and omniscient * * * So help me Saxony-I swear by Almighty God.

Servia-I swear by one God and with all that is according to law most sacred and in this world dearest * * * So help me God in this and that other world. Spain-After swearing the deputy on the gospel, the president says: "Then may God repay you, but, if you fail, may he claim it from you." Sweden and Norway-I (president or vice president only) swear before God and His holy gospel * * * I will be faithful to this oath as sure as God shall save Switzerland-In the presence of Almighty God I swear * * So help

United States-I do solemnly swear * * So help me God.

In Bavaria, non-Christians omit the reference to the gospel. In Holland and the United States, affirmation is optional. In Prussia and in Switzerland, affirmation is permitted to those who object on religious grounds to the oath. In Austria, a promise is in every case substituted for an oath. In Belgium and Italy, the adjuration is used without any theistic reference, and in France and Roumania, the German reichstag and for deputies in Sweden and Norway, neither oath nor affirmation is demanded.

> The Duty of Good Living. [The Cook.]

"The average individual in this coun try lives better than the average individal elsewhere, says a New Yorker who ves well. "Take it in England. The well-to-do man is great on chops, but the poor man never has chops. They don't have meat at the prices the poor man can pay, for they keep out American cattle in order to keep up the prices of English beef. For myself, I live generously," he continued. "I do not believe that a man can continue long under the strain of complicated business affairs and do good work unless he keep his physical system in good working order. I am shy of stimulants, but I believe in taking, and do take, a plenty of the best food I can get. I have a regard for regularity, but do not believe a man should enslave himself even to a good habit.

"What do I eat? Well, pretty much anything that is good. I am a strong ad-vocate of a mixed diet, and while I am as far as possible from being a vegetarian, I eat plenty of vegetables. Meat is as necessary to me as any other food, for although in the torrid zones a man may get along well without it, in this climate, at least, he needs meat. Yet a meat diet exclusively would be as bad as an exclusively vegetable diet. Fruits, too, are an important element of proper eating. The various acids of the different fruits are all valuable to the wonderful mechanism of the human frame. You may certainly put me down as a thorough believer in the wisdom of taking the best possible care of the body. Human life is worth compara-tively little unless it is spent under the best attainable conditions.

How Bret Harte Lost $10,000. [Cor. Philadelphia Times.] When Bret Harte came east in the first flush of his California fame, and New York and Boston were bidding for his work, Chicago undertook to waylay him and secure the prize for herself. To this end a dozen rich and prominent Chicagoans arranged for an elaborate dinner, with Harte as the principal guest. The dinner, in truth, was given on his account, to induce him to cast his lot in the Garden City. As an insurer of their pur pose they put under his plate an accepted check for $10,0000.

The hour came, and the company, with one exception-the exception being the chief guest. The dinner was delayed, the dishes cooled and the gentlemen warmed with impatience and vexation. Still they thought that he would arrive at the last moment, or at least send some word of explanation. It was nearly 10 o'clock when they sat down, having despaired of his presence. To this day he has never offered any excuse for his staying away. But the reason was, I have been told, that Mrs. Harte had not been invited, at which she took grave offense, communicating her temper to her hus- barted PATENT RIVETED CLOTHING.
